Equestrian websites

The famous white horse of King Henri IV was said to be from Burgundy. Later, in the 19th century, Napoleon created a stud farm at Cluny which developed into one of the best known of the French national studs. Today the finest steeplechase horses are bred in Burgundy. With such a long and distinguished history, how could Burgundy not be a centre for equestrian tourism ?

Les jeunes ont la pêche (Gone fishing ... for kids!)

“When you get to the waterside, walk up and down and choose a good spot where the water is not flowing too fast, where there aren't too many weeds in the water and where you can see some small fish near the bank ...”

To continue your fishing lesson, download the document called “Les jeunes ont la pêche”.
